

FCC COMMENT 17-108

As a provider of internet content, we strongly urge the FCC to continue to regulate ISPs under Title II in order to maintain equal access of the intranet infrastructure for small firms like ours.

Without the strict guarantee of net neutrality, we fear adverse impacts on our ability to distribute important technical automotive information. Since our sites do not carry advertising, we must rely on an open and fair transmission of data that is not distorted by financial interests relating to the content that ISPs may carry or promote in the future.

The FCC position of the past several years seems to be a wise one, and we think NO MODIFICATION or REVIEW is necessary at this time.